

The Tell-Tale Heart

Genre: Short Story

A paranoid man is obsessed with an old man's strange eye. He kills the old man and buries him beneath the floor. Guilty, the man is driven to confess by the sound of a heartbeat, which rings loudly in his ears.

The Raven

Genre: Poem

This classic poem traces the decline of a man obsessed with the death of his beloved Lenore. A mysterious raven—symbol of death—appears at the man's bedroom door, uttering only the word nevermore, a haunting reminder of the man's loss.
